Terrain, map: The terrain and vegetation are highly varied. Competitors will encounter everything from fast, open forests with gentle climbs to steep, deeply incised valleys covered in dense pine and deciduous woods. Some areas feature almost impenetrable thickets, and patches of brambles will reduce runnability in certain sections. There are also complex, highly detailed areas where pits, gullies, and rocks will test your navigation skills. The terrain conditions will vary significantly depending on your category.
Previous map completely remapped in 2025-2026 by Ákos Kisvölcséy and János Sőtér using LIDAR data.

Until the date of the championship, participants and their trainers are forbidden to enter the marked area without the permission of the organizer.
Violation of this prohibition may result in exclusion from the competition.

Team Event: Teams of three will start simultaneously. Every runner must complete the standard mandatory course, but the team must also collect a set of extra controls along the way. Each of these extra controls only needs to be visited by one team member. The team's overall result is based on the finishing time of their last runner. Detailed rules will be included in the bulletin.
